A Heroine. From the Buffalo Express. Dec. 30.

We published on Wednesday morning last a full account of the bloody affair which occurred Christmas Eve, at Holland village, in this county, growing out of riotous proceedings on the part of a mob of drunken laborers employed on the Buffalo and Washington railway. The story as we gave it was one of remarkable tragical interest, but it failed to do justice to the extraordinary heroism exhibited by Mrs. Paul, the landlady of the house assailed, who was the chief actor in the appalling tragedy. The conduct of this woman upon the occasion, according to all the accounts that have reached us, will bear comparison with any recorded instance of teminine nerve, resolution and courage. The mob which assailed the tavern of Mr. Paul was

O. A. STEVENS, Gen. Supt. manifested, and Mr. Paul was speedily driven from the scene, his two young sons, one 18 and the other 20 years of age, coming forward to deal with the riotous visitors. Up to this time Mrs. Paul had not appeared .-It was not until one of her sons, covered with blood and bruises, retreated to her, in the rear apartments of the house, that she felt herself summoned to action. Her first instincts were altogether womanly. She thought that she could persuade the ruffians, by an appeal to the ordinary respect of man for woman, to desist from their violence, and she boldly went into their midst, drunken and armed with clubs as they were.

Her appearance and her appeals had no ef-tect upon them. They threatened her own person with violence, and swore that they would burn the house and kill its inmates. Then the soul of this strong-hearted woman rose to arms and declared for battle with the savage mob which would not be conciliated by peaceful persuasions. Escaping from a side at 11:45 p. m., And arrive at Harrisonburg at 6:45 p. m. contact the property of t door she attempted to rally the neighbors, of necting with the 2:50 p. m. train from Washing-whom there was enough near at hand, to the ton to Baltimore. defence of her threatened house and family. But the neighbors would not rally: the mob-looked too formidable to them. Nothing daunted, she borrowed two revolvers, dispatched a messenger to the store to purchase a hundred rounds of cartridges, and returned to her be-leaguered home. The rioters were in full pos-session of its front rooms, and engaged in an indiscriminate smashing of windows and furniture, helping themselves to liquor and appropriating property.

She loaded the revolvers that she had borrowed, placed them in the hands of her two sons, stationed them at the two doors leading into the bar-room, where the mob was mostly congregated, and directed them to fire several shots first into the ceiling of the room, above the heads of the crowd, in the hope that that might suffice to alarm the marauders and drive them off. They had no effect, the rioters were too mad with liquor and with their passion to be sobered by the warning. Some of them, on the contrary made a rush toward one of the boys, and then his brother fired a shot which struck the foremost of his assailants in the abdomen; and then, too, under the direction of the courageous mother, who reloaded the revolvers as they were emptied, the firing was kept up straight into the mob until it broke in panic and fled. One man was killed outright or dropped dead a few paces from the door, and was found lying as he fell, with a bottle of whisky under one arm and a piece of clothing plundered from the tavern under the other. others are likely to die from the wounds that they received. The affair was one of sickening horror; but it is impossible, while one shudders at it, not to admire, as well as marvel, at the cool womanly courage-not masculine, nor unwomanly— which the mother displayed. She appears from all that is told us, to have retained her presence of mind and her deliberateness of judgment perfectly throughout, exhausting pacific efforts before resorting to the deadly measures from which she did not shrink at last. when they became necessary.

Who have injured themselves by a certain practice, already described, a habit frequently learned from evil companions or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

MARRIAGE. Reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote communical happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair, and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another is blighted with our own.

DISEASE OF IMPRUDENCE.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-time sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from educa-tion and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease makes their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturned pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deatness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, problotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the mose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commisseration till death puts a period to his dreadful suffering, by sending him to that undiscovered country "from whomes no traveller returns."

whence no traveller returns.

It is a melancholy fact that thousands DIE victims to this terrible disease, through falling into the hands of ignorant or unskifful PRE-TENDERS, who, by the use of that deadly Poison, Mercury, &c., destroy the consitution, and incapable of curing, keep the unhappy sufferer month after month taking their noxious or injurious compounds, and instead of being restored to a renewal of Life, Vigorand Happiness, in despair leave him with ruined Health to significant over his realing disappointment. whence no traveller returns.
